

Reflections of Christ, an Honest Look into Love's Mirror: Introduction

Sunday, May 15, 2022 3:15 am

1. Greetings, Christs. It is I, St. Germain. Today marks the beginning of 16 weeks that we will spend together in Mother Mary's absence. Let me explain. The Journey into the Unknown group was taken from the concepts of the True Self/Mature Soul to being a synonym of Christ at a fast and furious pace over the past year. Many readers have blossomed and flown from the nest. They are thriving: living a life of love, care, and compassion, and are truly a shining Christ in their communities.
2. We have anticipated that this may occur, but it recently came to our attention that we need to pause and regroup, sooner rather than later, as our readership has fractured. On the one hand, we have birds who have flown from the nest and the unity that is provided by these writings is simply icing on a deliciously baked cake. On the other hand, we have fence-sitters, whose own souls beckon them to fly from the nest, but whose own thoughts are getting in the way and preventing this from happening.
3. There is a small percentage of the readership who do not fall into the previously mentioned categories. These are the Looky-Loos, who find the writings and discussed concepts to be a source of entertainment. They have no desire to even be on the fence. While it isn't our call, it is our hope that readers who are still in the ego's grip of judgment will walk away. They will always be welcome when they are ready to be welcomed.
4. My job at this time is not to interfere with the glorious work the Christ offices are doing by simply being and doing. This new series will merely be review for them and can be used as a resource in their ministries.
5. My job is to motivate the fence-sitters to either leave the nest, fly and come back to the nest for nourishment or to simply walk away until they are ready to let go of their preconceived ideas and get to understand deeply what unconditional love is and what it isn't (judgment of any kind).
6. Yes, Christ loves everyone regardless of what they may or may not have done, especially including criminal acts of all types. We do not judge anyone, regardless of appearances. The ego is 100% against this approach because it believes tooth and nail that there are some things that are unforgivable. Christ knows that nothing is outside of love's reach. Thus, this is the main issue with the fence-sitters and is the main issue we will address in 'Reflections of Christ, an Honest Look into Love's Mirror'.
7. As with all things of a spiritual nature, just a little willingness is all that is needed for admission. At the end of this 4 month's pause, we will be ready for Mother Mary's unflinching return to look at current issues in the world through the lens of unconditional love.

8. Your tour guide,
St. Germain

Reflections of Christ, an Honest Look into Love's Mirror: Week 1

Sunday, May 15, 2022 4:00 am

1. Reflection for serious contemplation, journaling, or discussion:

Why am I here, reading and experiencing this?

2. Daily Applications:

3. Day 1

What has led me to this point?

4. Day 2

Do I really believe that there is always more to learn on the spiritual path?

5. Day 3

Do I believe that I can live on the earth differently than when I was led by my own ego?

6. Day 4

Am I ready to let go of my ego's ideas about everything and have them replaced?

7. Day 5

Do I believe in unconditional love?

8. Day 6

Am I willing to discover what unconditional love is and isn't?

9. Day 7

Am I willing to become an instrument of love and live a life of service, where giving and receiving are one in truth?"

End Time: 4:08 am
